If you have been in Branson, or have enjoyed comedy shows on television, we do not really have to tell you much more about this great comedian and actor, Yakov Smirnoff. He is a Russian-born entertainer who has had an expansive career on television, the silver screen and on Broadway, and is so proud that he is now an American citizen, oftentimes saying (in his accent), “America, What A Country”. He also talks about arriving at the airport in

New York and seeing, as he landed, a sign promoting one of the World’s top Vodkas; it read “America Loves Smirnoff”, leading him to associate it with a “Welcome Card” to him, personally, purportedly to his adopting that oft-repeated expression.

Besides this show, he has also performed for several presidents at White House events. His quest has always been to understand the science of happiness. A full luncheon is included. We recommend booking early since we anticipate operating just one motorcoach on this specially-priced tour package.
